this the second volume on labour flexibility deals with how it can be reconciled with social cohesion following the council of europe s forum 2005 reconciling labour flexibility with social cohesion it aims to present ideas useful for political action for integration with the european social model it is divided into three parts the first looks at the framework of reconciliation and describes the complexity of uncertainty and changes in the structure of labour markets the second part is entitled the space for reconciliation and covers mobility social protection the quality of transitions and the quality of family life the final part covers the methodology of reconciliation including the model proposed by the council of europe the recent austerity measures currently adopted in numerous european countries assume that a rise in public debt should automatically result in cuts to social programmes and the privatisation of inefficiently managed resources this type of reasoning is being used to justify the destruction of social rights of citizens for the profit of the private sector resulting in more limited access to the most fundamental resources such as water nature housing culture knowledge and information mainly for the most vulnerable members of society such a view informed solely by short term growth and profit cycles is endangering access to those resources not only for current generations but for future ones as well this book is an attempt to go beyond liberal approaches to intergenerational and distributive justice it emphasises the role of commons and communities of the commons driven by the desire to defend and perpetuate those fundamental resources under the threat of expropriation by the state and the market this book also offers policy makers and citizens who wish to accept their political responsibility by being active and refusing corporate ideology some best practices as well as methods and solutions for renewing the configurations of societal relationships through commons thereby integrating the interests of future generations in the european community s decision making processes and institutions this is a contribution by the council of europe and the international university college of turin to the protection of the dignity of every person especially of those who even though unable to enjoy existing social rights have the right to benefit from choices and policies that ensure that human life remains unspoiled the question of accommodations that institutions and citizens must make to ensure social cohesion in pluralist societies is of concern to the council of europe how will we live and interact together in diversity it is becoming increasingly important to provide responses and devise innovative frameworks in the legal sphere in national education and training in competences and in institutional practice which can help build a shared vision while at the same time respecting each individual by comparing european and canadian responses among others the articles featured in this volume explore this complex issue they contribute to a major social debate and outline a vision of the future that allows us to set aside mutual suspicion and develop institutional arrangements and forms of social interaction capable of making diversity a factor for progress well being and social justice they also remind us that poverty combined with stigmatisation based on identity leads to stasis social malaise and an increase in security measures which ultimately prevent societies from evolving through risk taking shared responsibility dialogue and consultation we are at a point in history where economic inequalities are more widespread each day the situation of extreme poverty experienced by the majority of the populations in developing countries third world countries often coincides with an absence of democracy and the violation of the most fundamental rights but in so called first world countries a non negligible proportion of inhabitants also live in impoverished conditions albeit mainly relative poverty and are denied their rights the european situation which this publication aims to analyse is painful the entire continent is afflicted by increasing poverty and consequently by the erosion of living conditions and social conflicts the economic and financial crisis has resulted in the loss of millions of jobs and created job insecurity for many still working economic insecurity raises social tensions aggravating xenophobia for instance yet the economic and financial crisis could present a good opportunity to rethink the economic and social system as a whole indeed poverty in modern societies has never been purely a question of lack of wealth it is therefore urgent today to devise a new discourse on poverty in pursuit of this goal the council of europe is following up this publication in the framework of the project human rights of people experiencing poverty co financed by the european commission our ability to relate to and interact with those whose cultural backgrounds differ from our own will be among the determining factors for the future of our societies for most people regardless of whether they aim for international careers or life in their local communities intercultural dialogue will become a fact of life rather than an option education will need to play a key role in developing the ability to conduct intercultural dialogue which is an integral part of developing democratic culture this book edited jointly by the council of europe and the international association of universities iau explores the role of higher education in developing intercultural dialogue in society at large it complements intercultural dialogue on campus higher education series no 11 and the issue of the iau journal higher education policy on the same topic and includes contributions by prominent authors from europe the middle east africa asia and north america the book sets out the political context for intercultural dialogue and explores how universities can move from dialogue on campus to dialogue in society and hence to become actors of intercultural dialogue it also

democratic institutions and laws are essential but they cannot bring about democracy on their own they will only function if they build on a culture of democracy and our societies will not be able to develop and sustain such a culture unless education plays an essential role student engagement is crucial democracy cannot be taught unless it is practised within institutions among students and in relations between higher education and society in general this 20th volume of the council of europe higher education series demonstrates the importance of student engagement for the development and maintenance of the democratic culture that enables democratic institutions and laws to function in practice this volume covers three aspects of student engagement that are seldom explored its role in society through political participation and civic involvement its place in higher education policy processes and policy making structures and how student unions represent the most institutionalised form of student engagement the authors are accomplished scholars policy makers students and student leaders reimagining democratic societies although a demanding task is one in which higher education must engage as societies change our understanding of democracy must also evolve we need democratic institutions but also democratic culture and democratic innovation citizen participation as a cornerstone of democracy must go beyond citizen mobilisation on just a few issues an educated committed citizenry deeply involved in creating and sustaining diverse democratic societies is essential for human progress and advancing the quality of life for all the authors academics policy makers and practitioners from europe and the united states argue this point making the case for why democratic reimagination and innovation cannot succeed without higher education and why higher education cannot fulfil its educational academic and societal missions without working for the common good case studies provide examples of how higher education can contribute to reimagining and reinvigorating democracy the need to develop collective skills to acquire a shared long term vision and to manage change is evident given that resources are limited and there is no such thing as complete independence or immunity from the damaging effects of other people's acts or failures to act current trends are having a significant effect on both the scope and the substance of specific responsibilities individual or collective voluntary or statutory in addition extreme interdependence exacerbates the differences between values concepts of well being and interests potentially giving rise to mutually destructive conflicts wastage of resources and externally negative consequences hence the council of europe's proposal to adopt the concept of shared social responsibility as a vital adjunct to specific responsibilities to make them more meaningful in accordance with this concept
